50 WORDS – NATIONAL VOLUNTEER WEEK 2018

National Volunteer Week celebrates the 1.2 million Kiwis who volunteer in our communities every year. The theme for 2018: Volunteers, The Heart of our Community – By many, the work will be completed, Mā tini, mā mano, ka rapa te whai, captures the essence of the volunteering spirit and the essential link between volunteers and the communities who benefit from their generosity. The event will run from June 17-23, 2018.

People are the centrepiece of New Zealand's thriving volunteer community, providing their time, skills and compassion in areas that deeply need it. In many cases, volunteers provide a helping hand in projects that couldn't be achieved otherwise. National Volunteer Week 2018, held June 17-23, seeks to celebrate those people. This year's theme: Volunteers, The Heart of our Community – By many, the work will be completed, Mā tini, mā mano, ka rapa te whai, speaks to that.

Additionally, the volunteer work people deliver is essential to keeping our communities strong and healthy. Upwards of 1.2 million people provide a total of 157 million hours per year to volunteer work. Scott Miller, Chief Executive of Volunteering NZ says: "Communities big and small, throughout the country rely on the goodwill and passion that Kiwis have for their communities".
